DGIF: If you find a fawn, leave it alone

It's that time of year again when white-tailed deer fawns are showing up in yards and hayfields, and concerned citizens want to know how to help. In almost all cases, the best way to help is to simply give the fawn space and leave it alone, advises the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries.

Good-intentioned people out of concern sometimes pick up animals they think are orphaned. Most such "orphans" should have been left alone, however, says DGIF. Most wild animals will not abandon their young, but they do leave them alone for long periods of time while looking for food.

Fawns, born from April through July, are purposely left alone by their mothers. Female deer, called does, stay away from the fawns to avoid leading predators such as dogs or coyotes to their location. The white-spotted coat camouflages a fawn as it lies motionless in vegetation. Young fawns are "hiders" and will not try to run away when they are approached.

Does will return several times each day to move and/or feed their young. You probably will not see the doe at all since she only stays to feed the fawn for just a very few minutes before leaving it alone again. If less than 24 hours have passed since a fawn has been "rescued," the fawn should be taken back and released at the exact same location where it was found.

If a wild animal has been injured or truly orphaned, do not take matters into your own hands, cautions DGIF. You may locate a licensed wildlife rehabilitator by calling the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries' (VDGIF) toll-free wildlife conflict helpline at 1-855/571-9003, 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday or visit the VDGIF website at: <http://www.dgif.virginia.gov/wildlife/injured/rehabilitators.asp>.

Raising a wild animal in captivity is illegal unless you have a state permit. Each animal's nutritional, housing, and handling requirements are very specific and must be met if they have any chance of survival. Feeding the wrong food to a fawn can make it very sick and possibly lead to its death. For example, cow's milk will induce very severe diarrhea in fawns.

With even the best professional care possible, the survival rate of rehabilitated fawns and many other animals is very low. More than 50 percent of fawns brought to rehabilitation facilities die before being released due to injuries they come in with and unavoidable physical stress during the rehabilitation process.

Of those fawns that are released, a very small percentage survives the first year in the wild. Furthermore, many rehabilitation facilities have to turn fawns away due to limited housing and staff.

Wildlife managers have additional concerns about fawn rehabilitation. The process requires deer to be moved, treated — often in contact with other deer — and then released back into the wild. Often, rehabilitated deer must be released into areas with already high deer populations. Movement and commingling of deer increase the risks that contagious diseases, such as tuberculosis or chronic wasting disease (CWD), will be introduced into Virginia's wild deer.

The best advice for someone who wants to help wildlife is to keep it wild. Once people interfere, we reduce the opportunity for animals to be cared for by their natural mothers and we increase the risk of harming our wildlife heritage.

More information can be obtained on the agency's website: <http://www.dgif.virginia.gov/wildlife/deer/>. Among the useful resources is a revised brochure entitled "Keeping Deer Wild in Virginia."

McCrumm to speak at writers symposium

Award-winning Southern author Sharyn McCrumm, best known for her Appalachian "Ballad" novels, will be the keynote speaker for the 2016 Appalachian Heritage Writers Symposium set for June 10-11 at Southwest Virginia Community College, Richlands.

McCrumm's books have been translated into different languages and several have made the New York Times best seller lists, including The Ballad of Tom Dooley, She Walks These Hills, The Rosewood Casket, and others.

Her novel, King's Mountain, resonates with many area residents whose ancestors were among the Overmountain Men who fought in that Revolutionary War battle in 1780, and for NASCAR fans, there is St. Dale, a book about ordinary people on a pilgrimage to honor Dale Earnhart. She expects a forthcoming novel, Prayers the Devil Answers, to be published in May, just prior to the two-day symposium.

McCrumm, who has lectured throughout the United States and overseas, will be present both days of the event, and will present a workshop on Friday, June 10 at 3 p.m. Her books will be available at 4-5 p.m. at a book signing and reception in the Art Gallery at SWCC, open to the public and also featuring books by other symposium presenters. Her keynote address will follow the banquet luncheon on Saturday.

Other workshops on Friday will feature a range of topics of interest to writers, with the following presenters: Bob Land, editing; K. R. Thompson, fantasy; Kathy Shearer, nonfiction; Donna Watson, marketing; Dr. Rob Merritt, poetry; Dr. Joseph Bathanti, memoirs; Shannon Smith, graphic novels; and Chuck Thompson, fiction/mystery.

Saturday's activities will include a panel discussion to be moderated by Greg Horn, with Dr. Rob Merritt, Donna Watson, and Linda Hoagland as panelists. Storytelling will also be featured, with Gary Varner presenting.

The annual symposium is sponsored by Southwest Virginia Community College and the Appalachian Authors Guild.

Applications available for Phipps Foundation scholarships, grants

The Columbus Phipps Foundation is taking applications for grants and scholarships from Dickenson County students attending colleges or professional schools for the 2016-17 academic year.

Eligibility is limited to students who have graduated or will graduate from the Dickenson County school division or who have obtained a GED from Dickenson County.

Students who received grants or scholarships during 2015-16 must reapply for additional help.

Grants in aid will be provided to all qualifying students who exhibit financial need. These grants will be made until available funds have been expended.

Also, the foundation will present a limited number of merit scholarships to students graduating this year from a Dickenson County high school.

Applications for grants and scholarships must be postmarked or in the Foundation office by May 15, 2016.

Application forms may be requested at the following locations: guidance offices of Ridgeview High School; financial aid offices of The University of Virginia's College at Wise, Mountain Empire Community College and Southwest Virginia Community College; and The Columbus Phipps Foundation Office (telephone or fax 276/926-8152 or P.O. Box 1145, Clintwood, VA 24228).

Applications can also be downloaded from the foundation's website, www.columbusphippsfoundation.org.
